

POLICY GUIDE

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Michael Ennis is director of the Center for Transportation at Washington Policy Center. Before joining Washington Policy Center, Michael worked for the Washington state Senate and House of Representatives and was formerly a staff assistant for U.S. Senator Slade Gorton. Michael served in the U.S. Army with the 2nd Ranger Battalion and has been active in local government affairs. He earned his Bachelor's Degree from the University of Washington where he studied Political Science. He also earned his Master's of Public Administration degree from the Daniel J. Evans School of Public Affairs at the University of Washington.

Liv Finne is director of the Center for Education at Washington Policy Center. Liv served as an adjunct scholar for WPC over the last few years. She holds a law degree from Boston University School of Law and a Bachelor's Degree in English and Biology from Wellesley College. She retired from civil litigation practice to raise two children and work as business partner for a small business she owns with her husband. Liv is passionate about improving Washington's education system.

Carl Gipson is director of the Center for Small Business at Washington Policy Center. Carl also directs technology and telecommunications policy research at WPC. He was formerly director of communications and operations for WPC. Carl holds a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from Western Washington University.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Paul Guppy is vice president for research at Washington Policy Center. He is a graduate in Liberal Arts of Seattle University and holds a Master's Degree in American Government and Public Policy from Claremont Graduate University, and a Master's Degree in Political Science from the London School of Economics. He completed higher education programs at the Sorbonne, Paris and at Gonzaga University in Florence, Italy. He served for 12 years in Washington D.C., most of that time as a Legislative Director and Chief of Staff in the United States Congress, before joining WPC in 1998 as vice president for research.

Brandon Houskeeper is a policy analyst with Washington Policy Center and director of WashingtonVotes.org, WPC's legislative information website. Before joining the WPC, Brandon served as the Government Affairs Director for a professional home builders association, bringing with him over six years of experience and understanding of the legislative process at the state and local level. Brandon earned his Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from the University of Washington.

Jason Mercier is director of the Center for Government Reform at Washington Policy Center. Prior to joining WPC, Jason served as Director of Evergreen Freedom Foundation's Economic Policy Center. He is a voting member on the American Legislative Exchange Council's Tax and Fiscal Policy Task Force and is a contributing editor of the Heartland Institute's Budget & Tax News. Jason also serves as Treasurer on the board of the Washington Coalition for Open Government and was an advisor to the 2002 Washington State Tax Structure Committee. He received a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from Washington State University.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Todd Myers is director of the Center for the Environment at Washington Policy Center. Previously he served as communications director for the Washington State Department of Natural Resources, director of public relations for the Seattle SuperSonics and director of public affairs for the Seattle Mariners. Todd holds a Master's Degree in Russian and International Studies.

Roger Stark, MD, is a health care policy analyst with Washington Policy Center. Dr. Stark graduated from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine and completed his general surgery residency in Seattle and his cardiothoracic residency at the University of Utah. After practicing in Tacoma, he was one of the co-founders of the open-heart surgery program at Overlake Hospital. He retired from private practice in 2001 and served as Board Chair and Executive Director of the Overlake Hospital Foundation. Dr. Stark has been a member of many local and national professional societies. He currently serves on the board of the Washington Liability Reform Coalition, the governing board of Overlake Hospital, and is an active member of the Woodinville Rotary.

Washington Policy Center would also like to thank the following for helping produce Policy Guide for Washington State, 3rd Edition:

Justin Bryant and Lisa Lennick provided research assistance to Washington Policy Center analysts as part of WPC's Doug and Janet True Internship program during the Spring 2008 academic term.

Kimberly Hendrickson assisted with proofreading and editing.

John Barnes, Communications Director at Washington Policy Center, formatted the book and coordinated its printing and publication.